Full job description

About the company

This globally recognised company, regarded as leaders in the industrial assembly manufacturing space.

This privately-owned manufacturing business is a market leader in their specific space. Currently there exists an opportunity for an Manufacturing Manager to lead their facility in the northern suburbs of Melbourne.

About the role

As the Manufacturing Manager at their facility, you will be fully responsible for manufacturing, safety & quality. Indirectly responsible for a team of 80 people onsite across a 5 day operation. Reporting directly to the GM of Operations.

You will be responsible for leading a team whose primary responsibility is ensuring production targets are met, customer orders are delivered on time and in full while controlling costs of production, and delivering against Safety and Quality expectations.

You will also be responsible for identifying and driving opportunities for continuous and sustained improvement across Operations to achieve optimal results for the site. You will also be accountable for ensuring that the existing process & equipment is managed for optimum efficiency, cost & output and that plans and strategies are in place to develop the process to meet short, medium & long term needs.

You will play the lead role in building engagement and driving culture onsite.

Skills & experiences

This is an exciting and integral role within the business and your experience and skill set will include the following:

- Trade or relevant tertiary qualification - Engineering Degree

- Demonstrated leadership as an Operations or Manufacturing Manager within an industrial manufacturing / assembly environment (minimum 5 years) or equivalent.
- Experience in driving culture change
- Experience in implementing or developing an ERP system
- Ability to develop budgets and manage costs.
- Strong people-oriented leader with the ability to be hands on and build engagement across a diverse workforce.

Benefits

An opportunity to join a leading business within their space who are looking to grow within the Australian market.
